H.K. "ELECTIONS"

The proposition that conceptions of democracy differ from one political school to another requires no elaboration. The sharp | ontrast, for instance, between Soviet theory and British ideas of what constitutes democracy has been brought into high relief on a Idozen occasions since VE Day, 11 dis not, however, generally difficult | mackerel on your shoulder and to follow the lines of thought take it off when he tells you hachielt produce such conflicting to. conclusions. The same can hardly be said of Hong Kong's mild ! essay in democracy which on Fri- kercl, on my shoulder, but he day resulted in the election of a said nothing, and I had to keep member of Legislative Council to it there. 'We went out to tea. prepresent the Unofficial Justices of the Pence. At least, that was l i thought to be the purpose of the election. Apparently, however. there is still some slight doubt about it. The result of the voting has not yet been officially announced, and we guther that is not likely to be until the gentleman "elected" has received the endorsement of his nomination h the Secretary of State. Everybody knows, or believes he knows, that from sixty to seventy J.P.s recorded their votes and that Mr Watson received a majority von in his favour. The figures giving the official result of the polihave been withheld, we understand, until such time as nothe Secretary of State has given his approval to the assumption of a seat on the Legislative Council by the successful candidate. All of which seems to us to come very close to ludicrous... Either the J.P.s. have the right orthe privilege to elect one of their number to the Council or they have not. If they have, it is rather remarkable (even granted that it is likely to be no more than a pure formality) that there should be an official "screening" exercise the right to nut Honourable in front of his name If on the other hand, the privilege of election is conditioned by further test of acceptibility on a higher level, then 'the point and value of setting up elective machinery at all miss-us entirely. The procedure presumably is just : one more of thise unnicturestine survivals of a bye-gone age. against which constitutional reformers struggled ineffectually thirty to forty years ago. It seems to be a device by which the portals of the Council Chamber could be safeguarded against the invasion of a stormy petrel. In that sense, is as fully anachronistic as any Sarr of the Colony's constitutional set-up, and lends powerful support to the argument that the reform measures now under study cannot stop at the creation of Munieinal Council machinery. Whether or not Govenment is, at functure, prepared to concede anything to those who advocate an. Unofficial Majority on the Council, is not a matter of urgent importance. But should it be inrended to make any genuine con-

Two other acts, the London Squares Preservation Act of 1931, which restricts alterations to such properties, and the Settled Lands Act, which concerns the legal position of a landlord whose property is entailed.

will also have to be amended. Last Of Unspoiled

Grosvenor Square and Belgrave Square are the last of the great London squares to remain unspoiled. Both form part of the Duke of Westminster's sprawling estate. This is a strangely varied strip of London-the wealthy half square mile of Mayfair contrasting with the mean streets and grimy riverside instal-ations farther south. Grosvenor Square itself is a natural choice for the proposed memorial. The glory of its great mansions has vanished, but its dignity remains. The blocks of lats, which will gradually replace the empty houses will be carefully designed to preserve the Georgian atmosphere of the square. Since few people could ever afford to maintain a house there again, this is the best alternative. And in no circumstances: will any build-ngs be used for shops and offices. The square has been closely associated with America and Americans ever since the Revolution. John Adams, first American Ampassador to this country, lived at No. 9, and the house still bears a plaque commemorating his tenure. Walter Hines, Page, that great He adds some very significant [rlend of Britain during the first World War, when the was the American Ambassador, lived at

The square is to be faid out as a lawn with the kintute at one end. The Government, will bear the cost of the garden and, as soon as the bill in approved, the Pitgrim Society will launch an appeal for funds to cover the cost of the statute. Sir William Reid Dick has been commissioned to execute a bronze figure of the late President. After six years of war, the square is battered and drab. Nisof sen buts and. Army lorries have taken the place of the cool, secluded gardens of 1939. But those gardens were railed in hiddet from the public eye: only residents of the square had access to them. The railings have long since vanished taken for conversion into weapons of war, and the new Grosvenor Square will be an

Plans For Long Term Policy

(By Frazer Wighton, Reuters Political Correspondent)

London, Oct. 6. On the eve of Parliament's reopening on Tuesday some. British political observers are asking whether the Conscrvative opposition envisages the likelihood of a coalition with the Labour Party at some future date.

They point to the Opposition leader, Mr. Winston Churchill's reference at the Blackpool Conference yesterday to the subjects upon which the Nehru two principal British parties are on common ground-their anti-Communism, their broad agreement on foreign policy, particularly in ISSUES reference to Britain's association with the United States and her desires for friendship with Russia, and their like mind upon much social legislation at home.

Washington, Oct. 7. Former Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles today predicted that the refusal of the Nuernberg Court to judge the German General Staff guilty will have "far-reaching "consequences to the detriment of world peace." In his weekly broadcast, Welles said it is sure that German officers who had been inculcated with the militaristic doctrines of Germany's past "will continue to plan and prepare the way for a new war." He said the acquittal of the German General Staff will be regarded by the German masses as "proof, of their-own contenions that the General Staff was free from war guilt. They will continue to look to it as an agency which alone can reconstitute great and powerful organity capable of realizing the ultimate am bition of Germans to conquer and

Boston Beats St. Louis 3-2

Sportsman Park, St. Louis, Oct. 7. Rudy York's towering 375-foot home run smash into the left field bleachers gave Boston a 3 to 2 victory over St. Louis in the tenth inning of the opening World Series baseball game on Sunday. It was the first extra inning opener since 1907.

American League champions won out by rallying in the ninth to tie the count after the Cardinals had taken the lead in the eighth on an intricate play which caused a storm of protest from the Redsox. Perfect midsummer weather drew a capacity crowd of 36.000. It-was a nip and tuck struggle between right-hander Tex Hugh- Caracalla son and left-hander Howie Pollet Caracalla for nine innings, but Earl Johnson, who took up the Boston pitching burden in the overtime frame with a score of 2-2, picked up to win on York's long blast. Boston took the lead in the second on a score manufactured on Pinky Higgin's single, scoring York, who was hit by a pitched ball. Hughson was coasting superbly with five shutout innings until the sixth when Musial' double to right field scored Red Schoendienst, making it 1-1: In ha tumultous, eight-inning rally, the Cardinals thought they had sewed up the game when Don diMaggio misjudged Joe Garagiola's long drive for a two-base, scoring Whitey Kurowski all the way from first. Garagiola was thrown out trying to stretch into a triple.

There was a furious discussion at the homeplate when umpire Lee Ballanfant ruled that Third Baseman Higgins had Interfered with Kurowski as he rounded third, Ballanfant allowed the run to score, breaking the tie giving the Boston the lead going into the ninth.

Freddie Mills On The Carpet

(By Archie Quick)

London. Oct. 7. Freddie Mills. British cruiser weight champion. and his manager Ted Broadribb have been carnetted by the British Boxing Board of Control for appearing at a Services tournament on with a score of, 201.—Asso at Hull.

It appears that during a Liverpool visit for the Hawthorne-Thompson fight; Mills and Broadribb received telegrams from the Board forbidding them to appear at the Hull show because it was unlicensed.

It was in aid of the Royal Air .
